

ABSTRACT

A device for notifying an operator of the readiness of a vehicle for emissions testing includes a control logic for evaluating the status of each of a plurality of the monitors of an on-board diagnostics (OBDII) system of the vehicle. Once the vehicle is determined to be ready for 5 emissions testing based on the status of each evaluated monitor of the OBDII system, an indicator light is illuminated and/or an audio signal is emitted to notify the operator.